

RELIEF REQUESTS KEEP TOWN COUNCIL BUSY

Following is a record of the proceedings of the Council of the Town of Wainwright at its regular meeting in the Council chamber at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, November 5th, 1935.

The members of Council present at this meeting were Mayor J. J. Middleton and Councillors Huntingford, Welch, McLeod, Adams, Lismore and Link.

Mr. Mike Stang wrote Council offering to clean the bricks and rubbish from the rear of lot 9 in Block 7 Plan 644V for being allowed to retain the brick for his own use, and on motion by Coun. Link, the request was acceded to on the understanding that all bricks iron and other rubbish be removed from this lot not later than December 15th next.

Mrs. H. Codere wrote Council relative to compensation for injury suffered by her some time ago in a fall on the sidewalk on Second avenue and, on motion by Coun. Welch, this matter was laid over until the next regular meeting that the committee have an opportunity of obtaining further information.

The Department of Old Age Pensions gave notice of the application of Mrs. Margaret Gehring for Old Age Pension and requesting the disposition of Council and, on motion by Coun. Huntingford, approval was granted to payment of this pension, provided the facts as set forth in her application to the board warranted such payment.

An account from the Royal Alexandra hospital in the amount of $253.00 for the hospital treatment of Pon Yee and notice from the Central Alberta Sanatorium were placed before Council and, on motion by Coun. Welch, the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to notify the above named institutions of the fact that Pon Yee has at least three near relatives from whom Pon Yee is in position to obtain the money for his hospital expenses, setting out the names and addresses of three of such relatives.

The Finance committee reported, recommending payment of accounts in a total of $2594.07, as follows:

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Farnsworth desire to express their heartfelt thanks to all kind friends who have by sympathies, condolences, flowers, etc., extended to them love and kindness in the sad bereavement they sustained by the death of their little son Carl.

Government Will Hold Caucus on Nov. 18

The first caucus called by the new Social Credit government will be held in Edmonton on November 18, with Premier Aberhart presiding as a duly elected member of the legislature.

The main subject for discussion will be the implementing of Social Credit proposals, and when and how enabling legislation can be enacted. The Premier stated he thought that little would be done in this direction at the next session, but that possibly it would be better to have a special session next fall to implement the preparations.

were authorized to issue cheques in payment of all accounts recommended for payment, in a total of $2594.07.

The committee on Parks and Cemetery presented the following report:

By employing a man for part-time during the summer we have had the grass and weeds cut and burned in the cemetery; also the caragana hedge has been trimmed and weeded. The fences have been repaired and the house cleaned and windows repaired. The total cost of the work amounted to $88.20.

The road to the cemetery was kept open during the latter part of last winter at a cost of $4.00.

A new wheelbarrow was purchased to replace an old one which was taken from the cemetery. The cost was $9.00.

This is the amount spent to date. Mr. Love having mowed the roads and walks in return for the hay gathered therefrom.

The Council of the Gilt Edge M.D. kindly contributed $26.00 this year to assist in this work, and we wish to take this opportunity of thanking them for this valued assistance.

The whole leaves the cemetery in a much-improved condition.

The committee on Parks and Cemetery was accepted and incorporated in the proceedings of the meeting and the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to communicate to the municipal council of Gilt Edge the appreciation of this Council for their co-operation as evinced by

Mystery Picture To Show at the Elite

Mystery, thrills, dangers, adventure, suspense, romance, heroism, villainy—all go hand in hand to make this one of the most, high-spirited, spectacular pictures of the season.

The plot capitalizes the topicalness of the spy menace as it affects the cruiser Carolina, one of the navy's prize battle wagons. Much has gone wrong with a secret new fire-control system that is to be installed. With the arrival of civilian engineers, the Oriental consul and his secretary, and the reporter, Drake, just as the machinery is being loaded, the motivating drama and mystery gets under way.

Between accidents to the equipment, three or four killings and tampering, suspense is attached to almost everyone on the ship.

With none of the ordinary elements that make for good entertainment having been ignored, the picture comes to the thrill-packed climax with the quick moving action eased by real comedy.

It shows at the theatre on Friday and Saturday only this week.

Local Curlers Meet to Re-organize for Season

A real good meeting of those interested in the curling activities for the season gathered in the Town Hall on Thursday evening last, when President Telford was in the chair.

The minutes of the annual meeting held last April were read and adopted, and the chairman then gave a report of the work which had been done at the rink and the improvements made thereto; stressing particularly the new well, electric pump, water tank, etc.

A general discussion took place regarding the financial status of the club, including the probable income and the membership fees for the coming season. Finally it was resolved that the fee be the same as last year, viz.: General membership, $10.00; for sons of members, $5.00; for boys under 21 whose fathers are not members, $7.00.

A number of names were placed in nomination as a Membership committee, but after this had been talked over the names were withdrawn and a motion was passed that the committee be named by the president.

President Telford then named the following as the membership committee for this season: Messrs. Dr. Thierney, Geo. Clark and E. R. Frickleton.

Veterans Pay Honor to Valiant Dead

Seventeen years ago the historic message "Cease Fire" was flashed across the battlefields in western Europe, marking a finish to the four years of devastating horror which almost wrecked civilization itself and exacted a toll of nearly twenty million lives, and on Monday last, joining with just such celebrations over the whole world, the men of the Wainwright branch of the Canadian Legion observed this commemoration with grateful but sorrowing hearts.

Gathering at the fire hall, they marched to the memorial tower, from whence following the observance of the "two-minute silence" and the playing of the annual memorial wreath, and the sounding of the "Last Post," the parade, accompanied by a large number of on-lookers at the ceremony, wended its way to the little theatre for the annual "Remembrance Day" service.

On the platform with Rev. Comrade W. S. Brooker, who was in charge, were His Honor Rev. Burgett, bishop of Edmonton (himself a former Imperial army veteran), Rev. Comrade N. Bateman, and Rev. T. E. Armstrong.

The service was opened by the singing of "O Canada" and prayer, followed by suitable Scripture reading, each of the reverend gentlemen assisting in the proceedings.

The Bishop of Edmonton who gave the address of the day, spoke at length on the significance of "Remembrance Day" and pointed out what it should mean in the lives of all his hearers, who he said, were re-awakening memories of hard-fought and hard-won battles to sooth poignant recollections of former comrades who were now no more with us.

During the service the familiar hymns were joined in heartily by the daily routine of our industrial life leading to thoughts of nationalism and self-sufficiency in our national life; and with most of the nations experiencing unemployment over-production, people living below an adequate standard of living and that as a result we have unrest and dissatisfaction rampant in the nation; we are actually inviting war.

The young people decided that we had two alternatives; either we could remain free of war and build a new world in which brotherhood and co-operation should be the paramount features; or we could follow blindly in the footsteps of those who have gone before, and at the first beat of the drum and blast of the bugle, and craved by the mocking words of Patriotism and Liberty, we could march to our destruction.

"The meeting passed a resolution declaring that Canada should remain out of any war that is not directly affecting her, and that she is opposed to conscription of men without their consent of the youth also.

This is a live organization and all young people who are not already members of a young peoples' group are asked to lend their support to our new project "Christian Youth Building a New World."

PONOKA HOSPITAL GETS NEW SUPT.

On Wednesday last the mental hospital at Ponoka came under the guidance of a new superintendent, in the person of Mr. J. D. McDonald, of Craigmyle, Alta.

The new incumbent of the position replaces Mr. A. G. Wilson who after ten years' service was dismissed some two weeks ago.

Dr. W. Cross, minister of health, made the appointment.

Annual Card Party Draws Big Crowd

Quite a hall full were present at the Separate School hall on Thursday last on the occasion of the annual card party of Blessed Sacrament parish and a very pleasant time was spent by all who attended.

At the close of the card playing, a splendid lunch was served by the ladies, after which dancing was indulged in for a couple of hours.

The winners of the prizes were: Ladies: Mrs. Leroux, 1; Mrs. Codere, 2; Miss L. Page, 3. Gent.: Messrs. G. Grogan, 1; H. J. Clifton, 2; and O. Malmberg, 3.

Government Hires Financial Expert

Mr. R. J. Magor, Montreal engineer and financial expert, has been engaged by the provincial government for the next six months to make a general survey of government operations, Premier Aberhart announced last week.

This survey will also deal with consolidation of government services and considering ways and means of balancing the budget.

Turns Down Job Canadian Minister

Mr. John W. Daeke, president of the Winnipeg Free Press, was offered the appointment of Canadian minister to Washington last week, but turned down the job.

Dr. O. D. Skelton, under secretary of state for external affairs, who is accompanying Prime Minister Mackenzie King on a visit to Washington, is rumored as a likely contender for the post.

Mr. H. C. Wallace is spending a few days in Edmonton.

those present, being assisted by a joint choir from the three churches with Mrs. J. Telford (piano) and Mr. Alec Adams (violin) accompanying.

And thus closed Wainwright's reverential honor to the more than 70,000 Canadian heroes who have laid down their life through the Great War, and whose sympathies with the hundreds of thousands who continue to suffer from the wounds and sickness of the conflict.

Human Interest Story Mon., Tues., Wed.

Comedy in which there is more than the usual quota of laughs is the essence of "McFadden Flats," a Paramount feature for the show for the first three days next week.

It provides wholesome entertainment for both adults and youngsters.

While the theme concerns itself with McFadden and his ambitions, it is also tinged with pleasing bits of domestic drama and juvenile romance.

McFadden, culminating his rise from hood-carrying day laborer to wealthy contractor, decides to build a large apartment house. Early sequences are given showing the affection that exists between him and his Scotch friend Jack McFadden.

He sends his tomboy daughter Molly off to a finishing school which is very disheartening to her sweet-heart, McFadden's son Sandy. Molly becomes acquainted with the wealthy Hall family of New York, but is laughed at by them when her father is seen carrying a golden hod in a parade.

Later when a party is given by the McFaddens in their new flat McFadden and Mr. Hall discover that they were workers together in the old days and later enter into partnership.

The story has a human interest, and being tinged with an everyday air claims a full following of picture house fans.

Brishane Should Brush Up On His Geography

Arthur Brishane, the anti-British columnist of the Hearst papers in the United States, appears to be a brife weak on Canadian geography. He remarks regarding the British-Italian situation:

"The great empire on which no man never sets, possessor of India with its 3,000,000,000 population; South Africa with its gold, diamond and copper mines; Australia great Canada and British Columbia, should not begrudge Mussolini the room he craves in Abyssinia."

Which prompts the Godesch Signal to suggest that if British Columbia would cede Canada to New York the latter would be able to hand Texas over to Italy and so solve the whole problem.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tovee, who have made their home in Wainwright for several years, and who formerly resided on First Avenue, left last week for Prince George, B.C. to which point Eric has been transferred from the roundhouse staff at Wainwright.

Fire in Basement on Fifth Avenue

From some undetermined cause fire broke out in the basement of the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gaudin, 415 Fifth Avenue, east of the night of Thursday last, but fortunately was overcome before it got out of hand.

It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Gaudin were away from the home, and had left the children in charge of an older girl, who awoke to find the place full of smoke. She immediately took the children across the road to a neighbors, and at the same time gave the alarm.

In addition to the fire chief, a number of neighbors assisted in quelling the outbreak, which was confined to the basement, and resulted in a quantity of papers, and some fruit and shelving being destroyed.

Cabaret Concert Attracts Large Crowd on Monday

Living fully up to the announcement by the Wainwright branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.L., the cabaret show and dance which was put on at the theatre on Monday evening was truly "something entirely different," and the whole affair brought rounds of applause for every number presented.

With the large dance floor cleared for operations, the attendance being grouped around the walls of the hall, the Misses Jean George, Nadine Burpee, and Leslie Mortimer accompanied by Master Robert George, pupils of the Punnett school of dancing, of Edmonton, gave a long list of figure dancing, these including acrobatic, national, Indian, ballet, Oriental and tap dances to the full delight of all. In nearly every instance an encore would have been enjoyed, but owing to the length of the programme this was impossible.

The children, ranging in ages from fourteen to seventeen years, were under the care of Miss Bottomley, while Mrs. S. R. Keeling accompanied the pupils.

In opening the proceedings, Mr. C. T. Lally, president of the Local branch gave a short history of the Canadian Legion, and then introduced Mayor Middleton, who in a short pithy address briefly sketched the historical record from 1914-18 and then on up to the present time, eulogizing the Legion for its work on behalf of the Empire and returned men especially.

Mr. Chas. Horn, the chairman, then took charge as M.C. for the evening, and in addition to those duties efficiently rendered "On the road to Mandalay" as a solo, for which he was vociferously applauded.

Proving a versatile histrionic ability, Dr. E. Springbett gave an amusing "cowboy" (with all the trimmings) musical monologue, and later with Mr. G. Glass put on the gruesome (but laughable) sketch "Dan McGrew."

Mrs. G. Clark and Mr. D. Springbett very pleasingly accompanied the various numbers on the piano.

At periods throughout the whole affair the "Rhythm Kings," under the guidance of Mr. Alec Adams, played for the dancing in which the whole of those present joined and which taxed the hall to capacity, and at midnight a buffet lunch was served by a number of ladies, to which all did full justice.

A very pleasing gesture was the presentation to the artists from the city a souvenir of Wainwright on behalf of the "Boys" for their efforts on their behalf.

Altogether it was a fitting celebration in commemoration of the Armistice, and one which will be long remembered as "something entirely different for Wainwright."

GILT EDGE M.D. SET DATE FOR ANNUAL MEET.

APPOINTMENTS OFFICIALS FOR DIVISIONS

Minutes of the meeting of the Council of Gilt Edge M.D. held at Wainwright on Tuesday last with all councillors present.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland—That minutes of meeting of October 5th. be adopted as read.—Carried.

Mr. N. J. McFadyen waited on Council re settlement of fence as between N.E. and S.E. 5-44-4.

Moved by Coun. Taylor—That Mr. McFadyen be paid $20.00 for same, this amount to be added to the S.E. price of S.E. 5-44-4.—Carried (1 nay).

The Secretary reported sale of the S.E. 34-6-6 was not approved by Dept.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland—That Secretary write Dept., pointing out reserved bid at auction sale in 1930 was the assessed value which was far too high, and ask Dept. to reconsider offer; Council is satisfied this is all the place is worth.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland—That the following Consolidation contracts be approved, viz.:—

S-4 3 46 5, N.E. 2 46 6, S.W. 2 44 4, W-5 12 46 5, N.E. 1 46 4, S.E.

So far as we are able to learn, the rumor current last week-end that Mr. Fred Masterson, a former resident of town, had passed away has no foundation in fact.

Federal Marketing Board Chief Resigns

OTTAWA, A. Leitch, chairman of the Dominion Marketing Board, has handed in his resignation to the Minister of Agriculture. The resignation has been accepted. The Marketing Board legislation has been referred to the Supreme Court with the other so-called reform Acts whose validity is in question.

Mr. Palamar Tondou, of Gilt Edge, has moved with his family to the Wm. Blason farm for the winter.

Lost Deposits Set Record in Province

In the provincial general election of August 22nd a new record in lost deposits was established when no fewer than 132 candidates, or one-half of the total standing for election, lost their deposits. At $100 each this returned $13,200 to the provincial treasury. The total election expenses are approximately $100,000.

Official polling figures released on Saturday show that a total of 301,753 votes were cast, also a new peak in provincial history.

BREAD

When I was a boy, the test of a good housewife was her ability to bake a toothsome loaf of bread. Nowadays, it seems to me, almost everybody buys bread at the store. The big baking companies are talking about putting up the price of bread because of the increased cost of wheat and other materials. Secretary Wallace says that they had better reduce the size of the loaf rather than raise the price. It seems to me that there isn't much difference between reducing by making the loaf smaller and charging more, the standard loaf. Either way, the consumer gets less bread for his money.

In the old days of large families when practically everybody lived on the land, the idea of paying cash money for bread or any other cooked food seemed like wasteful extravagance. These days, with smaller families, mostly living in cities and towns, it just doesn't pay to bake home bread. My wife can still make as good bread as I have ever tasted, and about once a year she makes a batch just to keep her hand in. But she figures that in the long run it costs her twice as much as if she bought it.

CREDIT . . . . . to ability. The other day I was at the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury Cathedral, England. He is over here to explain the plan of "Social Credit" which is about to be tried out on a large scale in Alberta, Canada. As nearly as I can make out, the idea is that all credit should be controlled by government and granted to those who need it on the basis of their productive ability, without the many restrictions which prevent most of us from getting the credit we need.

"Where is the weak spot in the plan?" I asked the visitor from over-seas.

"Lack of trained, intelligent manpower to administer it," he replied frankly. "That is the weak spot in every human plan."

It seemed to me that the eminent cleric had put his finger on the weak spot of every plan of social and economic regeneration. I find myself completely in sympathy with the aims of most social reformers, but increasingly skeptical, as the years go on, of society's ability to bring about important reforms without first developing a great body of honest, intelligent administrators.

MACHINES . . . . . and men. I dropped in the other day on a young friend who makes the most complicated and delicate machinery that I know anything about. That is the machinery which produces sound for the motion pictures. "How near foot-proof can you make this sound equipment?" I asked.

"Did you ever see any machinery that was foot-proof?" asked Ted. "I don't know of anything more complicated than a wheelbarrow that doesn't take careful, intelligent attention to operate it."

I go to thinking about the multiplication of machines of all kinds, and wondering if the time might not come when the problem of finding men able to run the machines would be an even more difficult problem than making the machines.

DRIVERS . . . . . not cars. One cocktail has enough effect on the average man's reactions to make it dangerous for him to drive a car, a Milwaukee physician reported to the American Safety Congress the other day.

More than 600 men, women and children were killed last week in automobile accidents. Few of the accidents were the fault of the machine. The modern automobile is pretty nearly perfect as a piece of mechanism. What kills its victims is not the machinery but the drivers. The weak spot here, as in every other field of activity, is the human factor.

UNIONS . . . . . the future. The American Federation of Labor has just voted down the proposal to reorganize on the basis of industries instead of the present basis of crafts. The industrial union idea, however, is gaining ground.

I have a feeling that it will not be many years before all the workers in any given industry will be organized into one big union, regardless of whether they are carpenters, steam fitters, machine tenders or night watchmen.

From that it will be only a step to the old IWW plan of "one big union" to include all persons who work for wages or salaries. And the net result of that, it seems to me, may easily be a new collective organization of society, big enough and broad enough to take in everybody. When that comes, everybody will have to justify his right to eat by his willingness and ability to perform useful service. And that will be getting back to first principles.

The bride and groom arrived at the well hotel on their honeymoon. The room they occupied was beautifully furnished with a pair of twin beds. Upon seeing them, the bride immediately began to cry and the groom said: "Why dear, what is the matter?"

"Why," said the bride, looking at the twin beds, "I thought we were going to have a room all by ourselves."

The younger crop of college men are demanding women with brains. And they're quite frank about it too. No elbows-on-the-table, no whole-slices-at-a-time, buttering or bread, and no audible criticism of other girls' clothes on the dance floor. They won't have it. And they demand social graces, tact, kindness and sympathy of their dance partners in all things. . . . And the girls are learning in a hurry at the more progressive co-educational schools.

Renaissance influence even extends to makeup, and the darker face powders and brilliant lipsticks with a bluish, rather than a yellow cast, are demanded by the wine-colored reds, the deep greens and the glowing purples so popular in the Renaissance mode. And brunettes are in a much better spot than blondes so far as these colors go, as you may realize by looking at our portraits of Renaissance time. They were dark and they wore such colors beautifully.

Women are style conscious even in China. For when Butterfly Wu,

China's great film actress, appears in a new film with a very slight change in the very stable styles of China, Hankow, Canton Peking and Tientsin women follow her lead. The variations are chiefly those of fabric designs though there are occasional changes in the length of skirts at the sides of the long skirt, sleeve length and the height of the collar.

An unusual heroine we know is the woman who used to teach home economics in school in an exceptionally poor neighborhood. Knowing her pupils were greatly under-nourished, yet wholly dependent on her salary herself, she spent a large part of her income on extra, nourishing supplies that the children could cook and eat under her supervision.

We seem to be headed toward a feathered and jeweled winter, looking like the fifteenth century itself. And fortunately, imitation jewelry is the vogue . . . even in the cases that hold your lipstick.

MOTOR ASSOCIATION - WARNS DRIVERS OF CARBON MONOXIDE

At this season of the year and later on, motorists are urged by the Alberta Motor Association to give great attention to car driving precautions. Not only should the driver be careful to avoid accidents from skidding or other causes but he should be mindful of the deadly carbon monoxide fumes that lurk in some cars.

Each year, often beginning with the fall, several hundred people in Canada and the United States lose their lives from carbon monoxide in their cars. Alberta is on the list which shows the heavy toll all over this country annually.

Deaths usually occur as the result of a car being operated within a garage with closed doors, often unintentionally.

When a test was held recently it was found that approximately one-half of the vehicles contained varying quantities of carbon monoxide. This should be a warning to all, as the presence of any carbon monoxide fumes in the car is clear proof that a defective condition exists.

The Alberta Motor Association urges that car conditions should be checked in order, to eliminate such hazards as carbon monoxide. There should be a periodical examination of the entire exhaust system with immediate replacement of leaky gaskets or connections, together with a similar inspection of floor boards and bulkhead.

Dr. W. H. Edwards, of the University of California, has developed a "pump" mirror, which reflects all colors alike. The new device is said to be 98 per cent efficient.

LIBERTY MAGAZINE'S CANADIAN HALL OF FAME No. 19

"All right gentlemen," says Major General J. H. MacBrien, chief of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, "they were last seen east of the Arctic River; go and get your men."

The urge to get your man is universally attached to the R. C. M. P. and is a throw-back to the war time phrases used by the chief commissioner when he used to carry a snapper's rifle instead of a cane. They still tell it in France that General MacBrien, when he led the Twelfth Brigade, set an altitude record for brass hats. He refused to stay in his safe dugout and direct troops and had an idea that a commander's place was in the line with his men.

Now he has a desk in a shabby little office over a department store in Ottawa, but such he will have headquarters in a new $1,500,000 building. When he moves to his new quarters he will take with him a map of the far flung outposts of the R. C. M. P., one of them within eleven degrees of the North Pole.

A fine horseman, immediately after his appointment by Premier Bennett he promulgated the dictum that every mountie must be able to ride. He rounded up the desk-warriors sent them to Regina to await equitation and eat their meals standing up.

Today his men have shut down the run runners in the Maritimes and the dope peddlers of the central provinces; they are in Fort Peck, Ontario, he will on the Pacific coast and the fur steers of the Northwest.

Major General MacBrien was born in Fort Peck, Ontario, he was an Irish ancestor, a charming wife and six athletic children.

By NANCY HART

This Week in Washington

With the President and Vice President both outside of the United States, Secretary of State Hull for a few days was the actual head of the government. Technically, President Roosevelt was on United States soil so long as he remained on the Cruiser Houston, and kept constant wireless communication with Washington, but there was a short time after Vice-President Garner started for the Philippines, and the President was on "Coco Island," when Cordell Hull was Acting President.

Washington has been gradually acquiring high admiration and respect for Secretary Hull. Quiet and self-contained, he is regarded as having conducted the international exchange arising from the Embargo plan war situation in a manner not only befitting the dignity of the United States but calculated to impress the statesmen of Europe, while at the same time fully guarding the interests of America.

There has not been very much publicity about the State Department's conversations with European diplomats in Washington and its correspondence through our ambassadors abroad with the head of other nations, but there has been an amazing amount of delicate work handled by Mr. Hull's office ever since the war situation in Europe began to look serious.

Contraband of War

Perhaps no greater compliment has been paid in recent years to any American statesman by the rest of the world than the adoption by the League of Nations of the exact language of the memorandum prepared by Secretary Hull, defining contraband of war. When all but one or two members of the League agreed to prohibit the export of war supplies to Italy, they picked up Secretary Hull's list bodily.

Inside the State Department there is a very clear understanding of the European situation and a belief that the outlook for a general war is more serious than it was in 1914. Whether the United States can keep out of a general war is regarded as not at all certain. Every possible means to avoid embroilment will be applied, short of complete abandonment of all our national rights.

It is unquestionably true that the State Department has a complete set of plans ready for use in any possible war situation. Its officials, however, believe that the economic pressure on Italy, applied by 50 nations, will have an effect within a month or two. It is also their belief that Mussolini's end is in sight, in any event.

Finance officials of the Government are somewhat worried over the continued flight of frightened capital from Europe to America. As foreign gold pours into our banks, it creates large foreign credits, which might conceivably be used to

Federal Pot-Pourri

Everybody is watching the Supreme Court these days. The expectation is that there will probably be no decision on the constitutionality of the AAA until January.

For the first time since the first colonists planted their first crops in America, more than 300 years ago, this country is now buying food from abroad. The increasing importation of wheat, corn, soy, lard and pork is giving the Department of Agriculture serious concern. American farmers, however, are getting more money for less production and their cash income this year is estimated at $7,000,000,000 with a probable increase of 10 per cent above that figure for next year.

Plans for stimulating the better housing movement are awaiting action by the President on his return. The normal increase in housing accommodations is about 500,000 new family homes—houses or apartments—a year. We have not begun to catch up on the shortage. Renewed inducements to private capital to go in for extensive housing programs are expected. Probably little more Government money will be spent in this field.

It is believed here that Dr. Tugwell's Rural Settlement Administration has abandoned the idea of providing part-time industrial labor for city workers who are resettled in the country and will concentrate on trying to find ways to make them self-supporting on small farms.

Presidential Winds

Senator Borah still leads in all the polls on Republican Presidential preferences but Washington still insists that he will never be nominated. Governor "Al" Landon, of Kansas, is now regarded as the likeliest prospect, with Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago, as second. More talk is being heard of the availability of Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan. Little, however, has occurred to clarify the issues of the 1936 campaign.

HEART BEATS

The menace of heart disease is brought home to us when some friend dies suddenly from this condition. More deaths occur from heart disease than from any other disease. Nevertheless, the picture is not as black as this statement would suggest. There is one bright spot, namely that the number of deaths from heart disease in early life are decreasing.

The increase in heart disease after forty-five is due, in part, to the fact that more people are now reaching adult life as a result of our better control of the diseases of early life. After forty-five, the body begins to show signs of wear and tear. The heart is one of the first organs to show such changes, and heart disease, in this case, is simply a wearing out of the organ.

Heart disease, other than the form that is due to actual old age, or to premature old age, is the cause of much suffering and of the cutting short of many lives. In order to prevent its ravages, we must consider what causes these cases, because the hope of prevention lies in the prevention or control of the causes.

Heart disease may follow any of the ordinary common-sense diseases of childhood, such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, or measles, but it is especially apt to occur after rheumatic fever even of the mildest form. This means that if heart disease is to be avoided, all such cases of illness, no matter how mild the attack, must be carefully cared for, and before the little patient is allowed to go back to school or take part in games or active play, he should be given a thorough examination in order that the doctor may determine whether or not the heart is all right and that it is capable of meeting the strain of active life.

CONSUMPTION IS UP AS TAX DECREASES

Economists have estimated that a five per cent increase in gasoline consumption would result from a general one-cent reduction in the tax. In the United States, a certain gain followed the 1/2 cent federal tax reduction in 1934. This is the argument advanced by motorist organizations in the Dominion which claim there would be a similar result if the tax was reduced by Canadian provinces generally.

For the style she is wearing is of a newness—raglan sleeves of three-quarter length, with metallic cloth for cuffs; and more of the metallic cloth twisted into an intriguing neck chain. All of the fulness of the skirt is massed at the front with two small panels that flare quite widely at the hemline. The back of the skirt is left quite plain and fitted in at the waistline with darts. This style would be nice in crepe or satin as well as velvet.

Experimental Farms News

LAMB FEEDING IS PROFITABLE

The main point of the Alberta lamb crop is often lost because the lambs are sent to market in poor condition. The experience of far-sighted farmers and ranchers has shown that it pays to properly finish lambs.

The Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, states that lambs for feeding should be of good type, growthy and thrifty. Poor type "leggy" or unthrifty lambs should not be used, nor should those that have been docked or castrated, as the latter classes are subject to a heavy discount in price when marketed.

As the best price is paid for lambs weighing from ninety to one hundred pounds, a good time to start fattening them is when they weigh from sixty to eighty pounds. Many of the best lamb feeders start their lambs on a rape or rape and barley pasture. Some of the best early lambs will finish and be marketed off this pasture. This is the most profitable way to fatten lambs.

The standard grain ration for fattening is a mixture of equal parts of oats and barley (or, lacking barley, wheat) coarsely ground or rolled, as sheep like something to chew. At first this mixture should be fed at the rate of one-half pound per day, and the amount gradually increased until from one to one and one-quarter pounds daily is being fed.

Good alfalfa or sweet clover hay, or hay made from any of the grasses and oat greenfeed are good roughage to give the lambs. The amount of feed judiciously used, the better will be the results. The roughage should be fairly constant in quality, and in quantity all that the lambs will readily clean up.

If no legume hay is available it will pay to mix bran in the grain ration at the rate of one pound of bran to every four pounds of meal.

A NEW VARIETY OF BROME GRASS

A new variety of brome grass has recently been developed by the Dominion Experimental Farms, and sufficient seed is now available for the making of extensive tests throughout the country. The new variety is the result of many years of plant breeding. Brome grass is more widely grown than any other cultivated grass in Western Canada and it is highly prized as a hay and pasture crop because of its drought resistance and good feeding value. Common brome grass, however, has certain undesirable features, chief among which is the strongly spreading habit which makes it difficult to eradicate, especially under favorable moisture conditions. It becomes root-bound very quickly, after which the yield rapidly falls off.

Work was begun on developing the new strain by Dr. L. E. Kirk many years ago at the University of Saskatchewan, and since 1931 it has been continued by Mr. M. Stevenson, who is in charge of the Dominion Forage Crops Laboratory at the University of Saskatchewan. One of the chief objects was to develop a type of brome grass which would be free from the objectionable spreading underground stems. The method adopted was to self-fertilize or inbreed a large number of individual plants each season and select in succeeding years from the progenies, those types with the non-spreading habit of growth.

Inbreeding, in an open fertilized crop, usually results in loss of vigour and seed production, and brome grass proved no exception in this respect. One strain, however, was secured which retained all of its vigour and growth and which was an excellent seed producer. At the same time the plants do not possess the objectionable underground stems, and they are more dense and leafy. The new strain, however, is not entirely free from the spreading habit. This has been found to be advantageous. Several strains were produced by breeding, which were entirely non-spreading, but invariably these were less productive.

Preliminary tests indicate that the new variety of brome grass is likely to find its greatest adaptation in the Park Belt of the Prairie Provinces, where, in combination with alfalfa, it is expected to excel as a hay and pasture crop. In Eastern Canada, also, where brome grass is not grown at the present time, the new variety has given very good results, but further tests will be necessary in comparison with other types of brome grass, such as blue grass. Some of the main advantages seen for this variety in certain parts of Ontario are its drought resistance and especially its early habit of growth in the spring. Last year it was ready for grazing two or three weeks earlier than timothy or bluegrass.

The new variety of brome grass will be called "Parkland" indicative of its adaptation to the Park Belt of the Prairie Provinces. Seed will not be available for general distribution this year.

PREVENTION AND TREATMENT OF COLDS IN POULTRY

In the fall and early winter extra precautionary measures are necessary to prevent the occurrence of colds in the poultry flock. Crowded conditions in the houses, lack of ventilation, dampness, dirty quarters, draughts, and sudden changes in temperature are the most common causes of this ailment. The common cause of colds in the flock by interfering egg production, and by predisposing the birds to more serious diseases that result in death. At the Dominion Experimental Farm, Brandon, Manitoba, the preventive measures used have been successful in avoiding serious trouble.

The common cause of colds as mentioned, are avoided as much as possible. The over-crowding of young stock in their quarters is guarded against, draughts in the vicinity of the roosts are prevented, and the house is kept clean and well ventilated. Young birds that have been reared in the open are not closely housed without making adequate provision for ventilation. Occasionally individual birds will contract colds in the autumn on account of being exposed or on account of low resistance. Such isolated cases may go unnoticed by the attendant. The spreading of colds by such individuals through the medium of the drinking vessel is reduced through the use of a mild disinfectant in the water. A few grains of potassium permanganate, sufficient to colour the drinking water a deep purple is usually used for this purpose. Late moulting birds are kept in comfortable quarters until they get their new feathers.

A pen of birds that becomes affected with colds is first given a mild physic of half a pound of Epsom salts per hundred birds, repeated in five or six days if required. A ten per cent solution of argyrol has been found a most effective antiseptic agent in treating colds in poultry. By the use of a medicine dropper, a drop of this solution is placed in each eye, each nostril, and in the cleft in the roof of the mouth. As much ventilation as the outside temperature will permit is provided, and the contact of affected birds with healthy ones is avoided as much as possible. Soft feeds, such as dry and wet mash, are largely employed for the affected birds.

As with all other diseases, prevention rather than treatment

SERIOUS SEED SITUATION IN PROSPECT

Damage done by widespread August frost has made certain the development of a serious seed situation in Alberta before next spring. Some careful planning will be necessary to spread the available good seed widely, otherwise many farmers are likely to sow some poor stuff. As good seed is a fundamental necessity for a good grain crop this matter should be of first importance. Far-sighted grain growers are already looking ahead to next seeding time and arranging for their seed supply. Only too many grain growers however, are in a poor position to obtain the quality of seed they would like to sow.

One of Alberta's foremost technical agriculturists and probably the best informed on the seed grain situation of any, said recently that the seed situation in this province is the most serious of any period covering the past twenty-five years.

"CANADA TIR A DHEANTA"

"Canada Tir a Dheanta" is the Irish Gaelic for "Made in Canada" and thereby hangs a tale. Like her indication of origin, Canada's furniture and other manufactures of wood enjoy a good reputation, and for the future must be identified in two languages so far as the Saorstad Eileann, or Irish Free State, is concerned. As yet, the innovation has not been extended to agricultural products. The Canadian Trade Commissioner in Dublin advises that, by an order issued under the Merchandise Marks Act, it will be illegal on and after November 30, 1935, to import into the Irish Free State or offer for sale, a wide variety of new furniture and similar articles made wholly or mainly of wood, unless such furniture bears both in the Irish and English languages specific indications, prominently displayed, of the country of manufacture. As regards the indication of origin, "Canada Tir a Dheanta, Made in Canada" should be stamped or burned into the wooden portion of such goods in a reasonably conspicuous place, where convenient. Otherwise, in the case of upholstery, the words are to be clearly shown on a tag or label securely attached to the article. Canada Tir a Dheanta.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

Did you ever stop to think that the difference between advertised and non-advertised products is the same as that which exists between the modern transatlantic liners and the ancient barques.

In fair weather the barque may make good progress, but it can never rival the speed of the modern transatlantic liner. In the doldrums it stands becalmed or drifts with the tide, and in the storm it goes wherever the winds and the waves may take it; whilst the transatlantic liner pursues its steady course, perhaps with variable speed, but without misadventure.

The advertised product, like the modern transatlantic liner, has its own power and directive force. The turbines of scientifically evolved sailing appeal drive it forward and compel consumer acceptance, so that it passes undisturbed through the calms of depression and rides the economic storm.

An advertising campaign, scientifically planned and effectively carried out in the newspaper in the community is highly remunerative. It pays to advertise!

should be the main objective. The extra attention required in safeguarding the flock from the common cold will accomplish much in avoiding the diseases that follow in its wake.

BOOST HOME TOWN BY CO-OPERATION

A man who has a wide business experience and who has travelled extensively in our province, told us a true story the other day. It was about a well-known merchant of Red Deer, who, some years ago, said to his fellow merchants, "I'm going on a cash basis, sell cheaper and advertise." They told him he was crazy and that he could never do it. The man had courage and conviction; he put an ad. in his local paper, he kept it there all year, and every year since. He made money, his business grew till T. Eaton's became convinced that it was a field worth while, and bought him out. They followed his policy of keeping a page ad. in the paper continually. Eaton's also have prospered there, and other stores have changed hands, and instead of growing, have declined. And it wasn't Eaton's, with all at their command, who built up the fine trade, but one wise merchant with confidence in telling the people what he had through his local paper.

Canada is larger than the continental United States by approximately 300,000 square miles.

It occurs to me more and more frequently as the years go by, that "gullibility" is one of the greatest misfortunes that afflicts our people. Sometimes I think it costs our country more in the total than the most devastating epidemic of disease. Let's get the meaning of the word clear. Gullibility is the ease with which you can be misled by false propositions.

At heart you really abhor all swindles. It's the deal that you THINK is honest, that you bite at with avidity and do not learn you have been atung until you have parted with all the goods, honest money that could be extracted from you. Your gullibility leads you through suckerdom.

taxed the rich until they were rich
no longer? Think it over sensibly instead of flying into a transport of joy over the idea.

Take wealth away from all and you immediately throw hundreds of thousands out of employment—the maids, cooks, chauffeurs, gardeners, hostlers, butlers and others who earn their livelihood in wealthy homes.

Without wealth, who will purchase expensive estates, automobiles, race horses, yachts, etc? More men out of employment—thousands of them.

Without wealthy men where shall we send our wives when an urgent operation is necessary? Not to a hospital. Hospitals are not supported by men of moderate means.

Where shall our children find a college, a library, a theatre? Do you think you and I will get together with a few million others and supply
these things?

Who will supply the money for our railroads, bridges and office buildings? Will we? If no man has more than his share of America's wealth, who can undertake to finance anything requiring real money?

What if I am a man makes a million dollars a year, provided he spends most of it to give employment to scores of men and women.
It isn't the wealthy spenders we should attack. It's the wealthy saver the man who makes millions and hoards it. When he dies he soaks him property with the inheritance tax,
but if he lives and spends liberally,
it might be wise to let him increase his factories, increase his employees, and continue to purchase the high-priced commodities that none but the rich can afford. The making and selling of these commodities will give work and wage to you and me.

IT MAY NOT BE SO HARD

A news reporter was told to find out if a certain celebrity was in town. He had an interview with the person and got a definite statement of views on a given subject.

If you had that to do wouldn't your knees tremble? This reporter took the assignment as all in his day's work. This particular celebrity maintained a house in the town though seldom there. The reporter looked the name up in the telephone book. It was there as plain as any ordinary Jones or Smith. He called the number. When someone answered he asked for the celebrity's secretary. He was informed that the secretary was out. He soon ascertained that he was talking to the very person he was supposed to interview. He asked his questions received direct answers, got busy on his typewriter and in a jiffy the dubious deed was done.

Suppose that you were told that you must move an automobile graveyard covering fourteen acres
the size of the task would seem almost impossible. And yet it would mainly be a case of one car at a time.

When you once looked forward to four years of high school or college with all the tests and exams looming in a huge pile graduation seem'd impossible feat. As you look back you smile at your youthful fears.

Moreover, there have been many times in your past when it seem'd that life faced you with difficulties too great to master. When you actually got right up against the dreaded thing it either seemed smaller than when first glimpsed from a distance or else you were given ideas and powers sufficient to meet the issue.

Everything is composed of little things. The search light of this truth is that thing you have been dreading. It may not be so hard.

A CONVICTION
NAILED DOWN

There may be some folks who still believe Bruno Hauptmann is not guilty of the kidnapping and killing of the Lindbergh baby, even though the High Court of Appeals of New Jersey has affirmed his conviction.

Apparently in the hope that the orderly processes of law can be stayed in their course, a great effort has been made and still persists to create doubt.

One can hardly blame a man under sentence of death for resorting to any means to save his neck.

But if there still are any reasonable doubt of Hauptmann's guilt, the last vestige of that doubt seems to have been removed by the disclosure that even the very nails with which the kidnap ladder was put together came from the identical keg of nails he bought to build his own garage.

The tracing of the wood from which the ladder was made, from the floorboards of Hauptmann's attic, was a most remarkable feat of scientific detection. Now it appears that this was matched by painstaking work of another scientific investigator, who found that all the 45 nails in the ladder matched in every detail the unused nails in a keg in the Hauptmann garage, but also some 775 nails which had been used in building the garage, even to minor imperfections.

There would seem to be no way
for a criminal to escape detection, if sufficient skill and patience is devoted to his pursuit. Human beings may give false evidence intentionally or by inadvertence, but boards and nails, tool-marks and finger-prints, tell nothing but the truth. They cannot lie.

ABOUT
PRONUNCIATIONS

It is gratifying to learn from the National Board of Geographic names that the right way to pronounce the name of Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, is as if it were spelled "Abdis Awawa," with the accent on the first syllable of each word.

That goes to show how little most of us know—or care—about the right way to pronounce the names of foreign places. Practically every American pronounces "Paris" the way it is spelled, instead of calling it "Paree," as the French do. Anybody talking about "Matthreth" would be regarded in these parts as a sissy, but that's how Spaniards pronounce the name of their capital city, Madrid. As far as that goes, most of us are as careless with Italian names as we are with those of Ethiopia. If we've got to say "Abdis Awawa," why aren't we under equal compulsion to say
"Genna," "Napoli," "Firenze" and
"Genova" instead of our aliphahd
American way of pronouncing Rome, Naples, Florence and Genoa the way
we spell them?

Most of us, anyhow, feel like pronouncing this whole Italian-Ethiopian war a mistake.

FREE PUBLICITY
ENRICHES NO-ONE

There are a few people in every community who have the wrong slant on the mission of the newspaper. They do not realize that it is a business proposition just the same as any other industry in a community; even though its stock in trade is publicity. For instance, the Star has housed under its roof a plant that costs approximately $15,000, and the staff that operate it are paid wages which compare favorably with those of any other industry.

We have three strings to our bow, and no one or two of them can prove adequate to keep the business a-going concern it takes the combined earnings of all three branches
—subscriptions, advertising and job printing.

The most expensive end of the business is that which is operated to produce the newspaper—or, in other words, to produce publicity. No other business gives so much gratis to its community as the press. It supports the governing bodies in making effective bylaws for the regulating of civic life and uplift—it promotes every effort to make a town attractive to live in and make the citizens comfortable and happy.

It royally supports all philanthropies; those who are doing something for the under-privileged life, such as Clubs, Women's Institute, Church Life, Fraternal Societies,
Library, Agricultural Society, and so forth—in fact, every organization whose mission it is to keep our town progressive and up-to-date. Not only does The Star give generously of its space free of charge in a general way, but the staff lend financial support also.

Yet there are some who apparently think the columns of the paper should be open to free space in boosting specific events and attractions.

The hard and fast rule of all newspapers is that publicity for attractions, shows, gatherings, etc., out of which money is to be made,
directly or indirectly (by an admission charge or collection) must be paid for. Committees might just as well walk into a factory, a grocery store, a dry goods store, or a gent's furnishing store, and ask for two or three shovels worth of goods right off the shelves—as ask the newspaper for free publicity that costs very many dollars each week to produce.

We would remind the public that beside the wage bill, there enters into the cost of production of even a humble weekly newspaper the cost of the plant, light, heat, power, telephone, telegraph, governmental and civic taxes repairs maintenance, office expense, and a hundred other things.

Perhaps this angle has not been considered by those who sometimes seem sadly astonished when the editor, who, with his staff pay their obligations, the same as other citizens, ask payment for what he has invested so much money to be in a position to sell!

THE SPORTS CLUB held a pie social and dance in Gilles school Friday November 9th, a good crowd being in attendance, even if they had to travel through snow and bad roads.

Mrs. Everett Taylor had the misfortune to fall and hurt her leg. Hope valley she will soon be able to be around again. Mrs. Loe Wilson has spent a few days with her.

Mr. Jack Black has gone to Winipeg with two carloads of cattle.

What's the attraction at Dick Lichtfeld's this winter? It's near the Hope Valley Machine shop, all flocking here.

TAXES COLLECTED
IN TWO PROVINCES
EXCEED ROAD COSTS

Manitoba and Alberta were two provinces whose income from taxes on motorists exceeded expenditures in roads including capital and maintenance interest and sinking fund in the last year for which complete figures are available in official form.

In 1933 Manitoba spent $102,707
on roads under the heading of capital account, $397,317 on maintenance and sinking fund a total of $2,894,
747, as against which the province
received $2,526,856 in the two taxes
from owners of motor vehicles in Alberta.

Alberta's figures were $235,541 on capital expenditures, $780,533 on maintenance, $1,878,673 on interest
and sinking fund a total of $2,894,
747, as against which the province
received $2,526,856 in the two taxes
from owners of motor vehicles in Alberta.

England is going back to the land under scientific protection.

COMMUNICATION

FEDERAL ELECTION
REFLECTIONS

Writing under the above caption the morning after the election results came in, I fully kept my promise to refrain from mentioning
it. However, having kept my word and as the election had made such a change I feel I must make reference to it.

I suppose our disappointment with the results is uppermost with most of us, but I cannot help feeling how many people must be delighted at the outcome. Personally I can not see just why so many people should be anxious to turn out these old members and replace them by others
but there are many things I wonder about in connection with the whole affair. I can, for instance, understand the attitude of those who have been in the habit of voting Liberal or Conservative and continued to do so.

Most of them were born "Little Liberals" or little Conservatives" and will probably do older ones, so I am not wondering at all about them.

I am, however, wondering about the reason which prompted so many old U.F.A. members to vote against their old representatives and vote for comparatively unknown men, in many instances men almost completely unknown in their constituency or any other place. I wonder what they are expecting from their new men that they did not get from their old members? It would be really interesting if every voter were obliged to state why he was voting
the way he did; it might give an inkling of the new members as to what is expected of them.

The ones they have just turned out have made an outstanding record for themselves in industry, in initiative, in integrity and in their work for social and economic reform and have at all times worked in the interests of their constituents. I did hear someone remark the new men would work for the use of social credit by the people. However, it cannot be that; for that is what these men have already been doing.

No doubt there are particular situations in every constituency over which one might wonder. In this one, for instance, I would really like to know whether the candidate calling himself a social credit candidate who was formerly a U.F.A. member and who circulated every vote in the constituency stating that the C.C.F. stood for the nationalization of land, did it through ignorance or with deliberate intent to deceive. If it were done for the former reason it is regrettable in a public man and if for the latter, it is contemptible.

We must, however, accept things as they have gone, but I cannot help wondering why the former members of the U.F.A. (who must realize the work that has been done by their organization for the farmers when there was no one else to look after their interests, and who realize all the effort, all the energy that has been put into it) should lend a hand to any attempt to destroy it. Did they try to voice their convictions through their own organization, or did they simply drop it and run?

We have always been proud of his ideas. We gloried that we were not dictated to by our official heads and would have scorned going to Central Office to ask them for whom we could vote for member. I should like to know if any of these members have any guilty qualms, if they will ever regret their action?

I wonder if all these former members of our organization and indeed the constituents whose interests our men at Ottawa have so earnestly worked for, feel they have treated their representatives as "squarely"

as they were treated?

Of one thing we can be sure and that is if we have a new set of representatives who will better serve their constituents who have, with greater integrity, vision and
members and replace them by others
we in this Province are a very fortunate people and the group who have been thus treated will be glad to see the new men continue to help the fact that ours has been a democratic organization and the individual member could bring forward who will be most ready to rejoice for the sake of the province.

Yours sincerely,
H. ZELLA SPENCER.

"STICK OR BE STUCK"

Russell T. Kelly, head of a nationstrated advertising standpoint, weekly newspapers have been of inestimable value to local merchants—they have been the means of keeping business where in my opinion it rightly belongs—the local stores. If both the local newspaper and the local merchant are to succeed, the slogan must be 'United we stick, divided we're stuck.' Business is getting tough and the group who have been thus treated will be glad to see the new men continue to help

Mrs. McQuaker and Mary were supposed to the city last week, reporting very heavy roads on the return trip.

A spoonful of honey dissolved in a glass of warm milk is used as a creator of energy by Finnish athletes before undertaking strenuous exertion. During long distance marathon races they take a very small portion of honey a little on the tongue only, as a reviver.

AUBURNDALE

(Too late for last week)

On Friday, October 25th, a most successful dance was held in the Caron hall. A dance like the good old days before the depression, when everybody was cheerful and optimistic. Over two hundred people attended, the ladies being all beautifully and fashionably attired. A number of people from Vermilion and Wainwright were present. The Coultman orchestra from Irma played the music.

Snow and lots of it; but we refuse to believe that winter is here yet and that we will not have a good long spell of mild weather again in sunny Alberta before the year is out. Our local prophet says that we will have mild weather up until the new year. The district is fortunate in being well supplied with cattle feed, now that the snow has covered up, for a time, what grazing there was.

A surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ryben for Miss Lena Miller on the occasion of her birthday last week. The party was a complete surprise to Miss Miller, who came from southern Alberta and has lived in this district now for over a year, and declares that this is a much better country than that part of southern Alberta where she came from. Over thirty-five guests were present at the birthday party. Many happy returns of the day, Lena.

Miss Hilda Kennedy has returned home after spending a week of happy holidays with the Carrington family of Avonlea.

Miss Agnes Cleland has gone to Vermilion to take up the course of studies at the Agricultural College for the winter term.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. J. Leighton (nee Hazel Everett) on the birth of a son at the Viking hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyron Fraser and family spent a jolly day with the A. Fraser family last week-end.

Miss Ellen Cleland has gone to Vermilion to stay with Mrs. Geo. Clark for a month or so.

The roads are heavy to travel on now after all the snow. Garth Hetherington took five hours to come out from Wainwright the other day with a load of coal. He had to be hauled out of the drifts twice.

The Misses Allie Dewar and Irene Perkins spent the week-end with their parents.

Miss Eva Chynoweth is spending a few days as the guest of Mrs. J. Murray.

Mr. J. Murray has returned from jury duty in Edmonton.

SLIGO

We are pleased to report that Miss Mae Bushey, who was under the weather last week is feeling better now.

Mr. Schieck has finished drilling a well for Mr. H. Betty and moved his outfit away Friday.

The Sunnyside U.F.W.A. held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Howard Gilbert on Thursday. There was a good attendance. The final arrangements were made for the concert and dance to be held in Rose-dale Hall on November 15th. It was decided to have the Junior U.F.W.A. Handicraft judged at the December meeting at Mrs. Reynolds', on December 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Postans spent a few days in Greenfield with relatives early last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ford and family spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reynolds.

AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

"REMINISCERS OF OTHER DAYS"

15 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Graham left this week for their new home in Minneapolis, U.S.

Mr. Bud Simmerman was down from Edmonton this week to arrange a big sale of cattle in the Wainwright barn.

Messrs. G. Hudson, W. E. Washburn and S. R. Bowerman, spent several days in the city last week in an effort to get some alleviation of the extreme car shortage in this district.

Sympathies are extended to Mr. Benny Hodgkiss who suffered a nasty accident from a runaway last week which rendered him unconscious.

Mrs. J. Gehring left for Calgary last week to visit friends and receive special eye treatment.

Mr. M. L. Foster, a real old-timer and former landlord of the Wainwright hotel, is in town renewing old acquaintances. It is his intention to put the above building through a complete state of renovation and to have it re-opened in first-class style.

The Wainwright athletic club staged a benefit for the Hockey boys on Friday night last as a big closing event for the season. The long programme of healthy, hustling sport kept the large crowd in rare good humor, and all had a real good time. The financial returns too, were fully satisfactory.

EDGERTON

Wednesday evening, a badminton tournament was staged in our local hall between Paradise Valley and Edgerton. The visiting teams consisted of Messrs. Chambers, Hoskins, Pick, Smith, Thomas and "Frenchy."

The local players were Messrs. Welsh, Brown, Sawyer, Louis, Pawsey, Johnson and Anderson. Score: Edgerton 6, Paradise Valley, 3.

Plans were made for a returned game Tuesday November 12th, but we rather doubt if it will be possible weather conditions being so uncertain.

The Community Club which held its reorganization meeting at the home of Mrs. S. Pawsey, took the form of a card party. Prizes were won by Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Sawyer. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Welsh on Thursday afternoon when Mr. C. Connae and Miss Vivian Philippe were united in marriage by Rev. J. Caldwell.

The newly-weds will reside on the groom's farm south of Paradise Valley.

The C.G.I.T. was reorganized Friday evening under the leadership of Miss M. Bowen. The girls first enjoyed several hours of sleighing and skiing. Then they returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Pawsey where the business meeting was held. The following officers were elected: president, Joey Davidson; vice-pres., Kathleen Kelly; sec. treas., Eileen Pawsey. Following the business meeting lunch was served and a jolly social hour was most enjoyably spent.

Mrs. F. Ramsay and son Bobby, spent the holiday in Wainwright at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Pash.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. H. S. Wheeler, Thurs. afternoon. Plans were made for the Fallazaar which will be held November 30th.

Miss M. Bowen and Miss W. Armstrong were visitors at the latter's home during the week-end.

Rev. Anderson was in Edmonton last week to act in the capacity of a groom's man at a friends wedding.

The A.Y.P.A. have reorganized and their first meeting on Thursday evening took the form of an initiation when all new members were fittingly inducted.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Harley's baby of only a few weeks was taken ill during the last week and had to be removed to Mrs. Bullymore's nursing home. We all wish the baby a speedy recovery.

Miss Phyllis Watson spent last week-end with Miss Greta McGilvrey.

Quite a few from the district journeyed to Porter Lake Friday night and took in the big dance. They report a big crowd and a good time.

The preliminary estimate of the total production of wheat in Canada in 1935 at 290,541,000 bushels is 14,692,000 bushels or 5.3 per cent above the 1934 unreviewed estimate according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The quality of the crop this year is definitely poorer than that of the 1934 crop.

	No Mineral	Animal Builder
Number of Days Fed	138	138
Average Starting Weight	37 1/2 lbs.	37 1/2 lbs.
Average Final Weight	185 1/2 lbs.	206 1/2 lbs.
Average Daily Gain	15 ozs.	20 1/2 ozs.
Feed Required for Gain (per 100 lbs.)	367 lbs.	340 lbs.
Number of Crippled Hogs	2	0

You will notice by these figures that the hogs that were fed Animal Builder gained 38 1/4 lbs. on 27 lbs. less feed than those without the mineral.

The MICHIGAN KID.

by Rex Beach

First Installment

Rose Morris was at once the richest and the prettiest girl in Dover, Michigan. She drove a sleek, fast little pony hitched to a marvelous wicker dogcart, the envy of every child in town, and to Jimmy Rowan, she represented all that was both desirable and unattainable.

By the time he was fifteen he was hopelessly in love with her and he carved hearts and arrows on all the trees in his yard and initiated them with interlocking R's and J's. He wrote her passionate missives, love notes and in words of fire he told her of his undying devotion. He never sent the notes, of course, and his declarations were only whispered to the empty air, for he still remained "the Rowan kid"; his people were desperately poor and he was cursed with a sensitive pride.

Jim was surprised one day to hear that Mr. Hiram Morris had "gone out of business" and was leaving for the west. What that meant the boy did not know, but he understood that the Morris fortune was not what it had been. Rose and her mother remained in Dover. They lived on much as usual and they referred vaguely to those large interests which kept Mr. Morris away from home. But the pony and dogcart were gone and so were the high-stepping boys. It was while Jim was working his way through college that they quietly moved away. The Morris house sold for barely enough to pay the mortgage.

Some people endure poverty cheerfully, others with a grim stoicism; the majority of people who are born accept it with a fatalistic resignation and never look forward to anything else.

Jim Rowan was unlike any of these. He loathed poverty; it was unendurable. It had kept him from knowing Rose Morris. He swore he would make himself rich for her sake. In time this became a fixed idea with him and he quit college and went to work savagely. It took him quite a while, however, to realize that riches are not come by in a hurry and that he was getting nowhere.

He had lost track of the Morrises completely—there was no use of his keeping in touch with them—but he still had his day-dreams, he still thought of himself as Rose's prince who sooner or later would search her out and seat her upon a throne.

Depression seized him occasionally when he saw how hopeless was the task he had set for himself.

At such times he grew desperate and he told himself that no price was too great to pay for success; he longed for some opportunity of becoming suddenly rich and vowed that he would sell his soul for such a chance.

"The chance came finally, or it seemed to come, with the news of the Klondike discovery. Jim joined the first rush to the Yukon and he arrived in Dawson City with the firm determination to make a fortune somehow, anyhow. Here again, however, he learned that money was not to be had for the asking.

Picking mining was a hazardous undertaking, with the odds a thousand to one against success. Education counted for little in a country where men were judged on a pick-and-shovel basis and paid for the actual work they did. Jim saw that here was not the place in which to earn a fortune; here was nothing but speculation, chance, a gamble either with men or with nature.

In order to bear the game one had to risk all, then double his winnings and risk them again and again. To gamble here was not to win, it was the daily practice of everybody. Men gambled, with death when they hit the trail; they gambled again when they staked their labor and their time against Nature's bedrock secrets, only they took longer chances than when they heaped their chips on the roulette table or dropped their "pokes" on the high card. There was this difference, too: Nature seldom played fairly, whereas there were many square gambling houses in Dawson.

Jim Rowan fitted himself to his

of sensational exploits on the trail, at the mines, or at the gambling tables, the one perhaps best known of all was "The Michigan Kid." He completely—there was no use of his keeping in touch with them—but he still had his day-dreams, he still thought of himself as Rose's prince who sooner or later would search her out and seat her upon a throne.

A hundred stories were told about the Michigan Kid and some were not pleasant, for it required a ruthless man to hold down the job that Jim had taken, but most of them had to do with his luck. That luck became a byword, finally: men blessed with extraordinary and unexpected luck were apt to boast that they had "Michigan's luck." "Michigan's luck" became an Alaskan phrase.

More than once Rowan took stock of his winnings and realized that he had nearly attained the goal he had set for himself, but invariably Fate intervened to prevent him from quite reaching the quitting point. Time crept along. The cycle of life for placer camps is brief.

Dawson grew, flourished, began to die; representatives of big companies appeared and bought up tracts of property; they talked of huge dredging and hydraulic projects.

Some of these newcomers were possessed of the gambling fever and they tried their luck against the Michigan Kid's. Rumors spread of big games in the back rooms of the Kid's place, games where the sky was the limit. One man in particular scoffed at "Michigan's Luck" and prophesied that he would "get" the Kid—send him out of the country broke. This was a Colonel Johnson, a great engineer and mining promoter who represented a London syndicate. He and Rowan met, finally, much as famous duelists meet, and behind locked doors they played for twenty hours.

What the stakes were nobody knew, but they must have been enormous, and luck must have run the Kid's way, as usual, for Colonel Johnson rose finally, stepped into the hall, and killed himself.

That at least was the story which had clipped from a Dover newspaper on the day Rose graduated from the local high school and it showed her as a girl in white with a floppy hat and a sash of ribbon about her waist. It was perhaps the only one and only personal possession that he had never risked losing at some time or other. He gazed at it now for quite a while.

He wondered if Rose were still alive. If so, she must have grown into a beautiful woman, yes, and a good woman—here the gambler was speaking. No doubt she was married. He pondered this thought deliberately and it awakened a feeling of regret too indefinite to be called a pang, for long ago he had realized that it was not the flesh-and-blood Rose Morris that he worshipped but an idea and an ideal. Of course he proposed to find her—that was the thing he had in mind—but what would happen when he found her was another matter.

When he boarded the steamship at St. Michael he saw no familiar faces and, inasmuch as his name meant nothing to his fellow passengers, he felt a great relief. Already he had begun to realize, as he had not realized in Dawson, that whatever the Michigan Kid may have stood for on the upper river, back home that name would stand for something altogether different.

Back home! The words possess a peculiar significance for men who have not been "outside" in more than half a century. Nobody in the homeward-bound Alaskan could in the least appreciate them.

At home the ship would be for twenty-four hours and Rowan went ashore to see what the place looked like. Here again he passed unnoticed and he was greatly cheered by that fact. If he could walk the streets of an Alaskan gold camp without being recognized, it argued that he would have no difficulty whatever in the big world outside.

His attention was attracted by a poster which advertised an informal rally of all the citizens of Nome who hailed from Michigan. The meeting was to be held that night for the purpose of general good fellowship and acquaintance and with the view of organizing a Wolvskin Lodge. Jim decided to go.

It turned out to be a pleasant gathering. A glad-hand committee was at the door to introduce strangers around; there was a program of entertainment with refreshment provided afterwards.

Jim Rowan grinned: Here was old home town. He wondered who these pleasant-faced men and women would think if they knew they were the unobtrusive visitor, "The Michigan Kid," the most notorious "poker" in all the place.

He heard his name mentioned during the evening—a name which Lansing delivered a speech extolling the home state and referred to the Kid as "that unsavory character of the upper Yukon who has brought odium upon the fair name of our brilliant 'Ara' Jim Rowan."

W-ll he had the money anyhow. One had to pay something for success. Nowhere did he hear a name or see a face he knew, with perhaps one exception—the face of an old man who sat in a quiet corner. He was a bearded face and the man was poorly dressed. He wore rubber boots and overalls and a faded threadbare macintosh that hung loosely from his stooping shoulders. His hair was thin and gray and he coughed a good deal.

Jim studied the old fellow's profile and decided that he had probably seen the man across the gambling table or the bar—a river of derelicts like this one had flowed in and out of his place during these years. He had about put him out of his mind when the man rose to leave. Then Rowan started, leaned forward; his eyes fixed themselves upon the stranger's bearded cheek.

A SIMPLE MATCH PUZZLE. One of the simplest of puzzles, but one that will keep the cleverest of people puzzled for a considerable time, is the following: First take eight matches, and lay them on a table with an equal space between each. Now, what you have to do is to take hold of one match of the eight, and lifting it over two matches, place it against a third. Now take another match and do the same again. The idea is each time to lift one match over two matches to a third, so that in the end you have four pairs of matches. It sounds very simple indeed, but you just have a try, and you will find out your mistake.

Now for the solution. Take the fifth match to be the second, the match that was the third to be the seventh; then you will find that in another two moves you will have completed the puzzle. Just try it on your friends.

Here and There

Our visit to the wider reaches of the world has elicited the concern of conservationists, but now science is bespeaking our solicitude in behalf of some of the glaciers which bid fair to disappear within a few decades. A recent big summer success by wild birds to the rule. Dr. Francis E. Matthews, of the U. S. Geological Survey, fears that within another 30 years Glacier National Park, Montana, may be minus its glaciers. Mount Rainier National Park, Washington, also has suffered from heat prostration. At no time within the memory of living persons has the recession of the ice rivers in these areas been so rapid as during the long-protracted heat waves of 1934. During normal winters snowfall and frigidly are wont to replace to a large degree the melting snows of summer.

First annual competition for the most beautiful autumn-tinted Maple Leaf is announced by the Canadian Government through the Canadian Travel Bureau at Ottawa in co-operation with the National Railway. The prize list for the 1935 competition provides for a grand prize of $100 to the person sending in the most beautiful leaf, a second of $40 and a third prize of $20. In addition a prize of $30 for the leaf with largest area, and a second largest $10 will be awarded.

"Steel of Empire," the recently published work by Joan Murray Gibson, while really the story of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has so much of other Canadian history that it will find a permanent place as one of the outstanding contributions to the records of the Dominion. Starting with the first known arrival on our shores, a Chinaman, Hui Sien, in British Columbia at the end of the 18th century, the author traces the romantic growth of the Canadian Pacific, many centuries later, with a wealth of incident and detail, the author's long association with the railway having been of the utmost value.

Possessing one of the finest collections in the world of colored pictures of scenes in the heart of the Rockies, the Canadian Pacific, of Banff, recently exhibited them to the Women's Canadian Club at Banff, illustrating lectures on the Vancouver Hotel. The pictures included scenes of mountain valleys, lakes and birds, animal and flower life.

Evangeline Booth, 69-year-old commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, told the "story of the Army" to the men and women of the Canadian Club at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, recently. "I was born in the Salvation Army," she said, "but it has never become a common thing to me. It has always been a sacred duty. A capacity audience gave her an ovation."

Keen outdoor man, enthusiastic member and past president of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies and a leading stalwart in the ranks of the Trail Riders, J. M. Wardle, chief organizer, National Park of Canada, has won well-deserved promotion to the post of deputy minister of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Premier Dymally, of New Brunswick, was the chief speaker recently when the City of Saint John played host at a dinner in the Municipal Hotel to New Brunswick's guides at their twenty-third annual convention. Heavy fall gilding affected attendance, but a good membership under the chairmanship of William T. Griffin, of Balastron, president of the Association, enjoyed a successful gathering.

Hints for the Household

Conducted By Betty Barclay

When you wish particularly to please.

Steak Supreme
(6 servings)
1 flanked steak
1 large onion
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon mixed dry herbs
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup cold water
1 1/2 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 cups Hawaiian pineapple juice

Melt the butter in Dutch oven and brown the sliced onion and powdered herbs, remove onion and brown the steak, which has been cut into pieces 2 by 3 inches and rolled in flour. Add remaining flour, brown slightly, then seasonings and hot pineapple juice. Cover closely and simmer for several hours, or until steak is tender.

Maul Ice Box Cake
1 1/2 tablespoons gelatin soaked in 1 1/2 cups Hawaiian pineapple juice
1 cup sugar
1 pinch salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind (zeest)

4 cups whites
1 cup whipping cream
1/2 cup pineapple tidbits
1 dozen vanilla wafers, or 2 dozen lady fingers
Marshmallow cherries

Soften gelatin in cold water, heat 1/2 cup of the pineapple juice and dissolve the gelatin. Add sugar, salt and remaining pineapple juice and lemon zest and juice. Chill until jelly starts to congeal, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Turn into a mold lined with the cakes and chill until firm.

Unmold and serve garnished with pineapple tidbits, cherries and additional whipped cream slightly sweetened, tinted a pale green and put on the cake with a pastry tube.

LEMON SHERBERT

1 cup milk
1 cup heavy cream
2/3 cup sugar (or 1/3 cup sugar and 1/3 cup corn syrup)
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 Junket tablet
1 tablespoon cold water

Dissolve Junket Tablet in table-spoonful of cold water. Mix sugar and milk to lukewarm (110 degrees F.) not hot. Remove from stove. Be sure sugar is dissolved. Add dissolved Junket Tablet. Stir a few seconds, and pour immediately into refrigerator tray. Let stand undisturbed in room until firm and cool—about 10 minutes. Stir in cream, previously whipped, and lemon juice. Mix well and put in freezing compartment at as cold a temperature as possible. When partly frozen (it will be thick around the edges), scrape from both sides and bottom of the pan and then beat the contents up in the refrigerator tray quickly with a fork or spoon, and place back in refrigerator to finish freezing.

DESSERTS FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW CAN BE ECONOMICALLY MADE TOGETHER

Here's an idea to tempt any thrifty housewife. Desserts for both today and tomorrow may be made from one can of sweetened condensed milk by easy, shortcut and economical recipes. The two desserts can be made in half an hour and put in the refrigerator to chill—Cream Peach Cake until dinner time today, Pineapple Cream for dinner tomorrow.

Cream Peach Cake
1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt

Few drops almond extract
2 cups fresh peaches, crushed
1 sponge cake or 2 sponge layers
Blend together, sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, salt and almond extract. Stir until mixture thickens. Fold in the crushed peaches. Split sponge cake and spread filling between the two parts, or spread between sponge layers. Sprinkle the top with powdered sugar. Serve with whipped cream if desired.

Pineapple Cream
1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk
3 cups marshmallows, cut in eighths before measuring
2 cups crushed pineapple
1 cup water

1/2 cup finely chopped nut meats
Blend thoroughly sweetened condensed milk, finely cut marshmallows, crushed pineapple which has been drained, water, and finely chopped nut meats. Chill in refrigerator for 12 hours or longer. Serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with maraschino cherries. Serves 10.

JUNKET ORANGE SHERBERT

(Freezer)
4 junket tablets
2 quarts milk
2 cups sugar
6 oranges

Warm the milk slightly, add sugar and dissolve Junket Tablets in 1 tablespoon cold water, add to milk mixture, stir quickly a moment, pour into freezer can, let stand in warm room until firm and cool. Pack in ice and salt, freeze to thick mush; add juice and grated rind of oranges and finish freezing.

THOSE HANDY TART SHELLS

In a pie-eating country like ours, it's wise to have a repertoire of pastry desserts for all occasions and all seasons. For instance, for midsummer entertaining a most appealing dessert is a tart shell with a cool, light filling—and it's easy to serve.

Orange Tartlets (Glaze)

4 oranges, sections free from membrane
1/2 cup sugar
1 package orange-flavored gelatin
1 1/2 cups warm water
1 cup cream, whipped
9 baked 3 1/2-inch tart shells
Combine orange sections and sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Pour over orange sections. Chill until gelatin begins to thicken. Fold 4 tablespoons thickened gelatin into whipped cream. Chill. Place layer of the whipped cream in bottom of each tart shell. Chill about 10 minutes. Arrange jellied orange sections on top of cream, and add thickened gelatin to fill tart.

new surroundings and adapted himself to a new code of morals. He played as other men played, except in one respect; he never played for the excitement or for the fun of it; he played only to win. He played for Rose Morris. He tried speculating in claims, but he was unlucky; his only winnings came from the manipulating of Dawson City real estate or at cards, and the time when he found himself the owner of a huge front street saloon and gambling house, together with a nickname of the Alaskan flavor.

Perhaps a score of people knew him as James Rowan, but to the thousands that went in and out of his place he was "The Michigan Kid." That was the way he even signed his checks, for the name had brought him luck, and superstitiously he clung to it.

Life flowed at a furious pace in those early days. Reputations were made in a night; in six months they were hallowed; in a year they had become legendary. There were many celebrities in the Yukon country the mere mention of whom evoked tales was made public and which the authorities accepted. Certain astute-minded persons whispered knowingly that this story was all a fabrication; that "Michigan's luck" had deserted him and that the shot had been fired inside, not outside, the room.

Ugly rumors such as these flew through the streets, but whether they reached the ears of the Kid nobody ever knew. Perhaps they did. Perhaps that was why he sold his place two weeks later and without so much as saying goodbye to anybody he caught the next down-river boat.

When Jim Rowan closed the door of his steamer stateroom behind him he closed it, as he thought, upon The Michigan Kid and everything that had to do with that notorious character.

When the first bend of the river had hidden Dawson City from view he drew from his pocket a wallet, and from this he carefully extracted a blurry, time-yellowed picture of Rose Morris. It was a picture he

THE PLUMBERS OF PARIS

Condensed from Esquire by Joseph Schrank

Some people don't know when they're well off. Charlie Harris had the nicest studio in that part of Paris. And mind you, he had a tub. He was one of the few. But Charlie wanted a shower bath.

On the corner was an establishment marked M. Pettit & Fils, Plumbers. He found M. Pettit having an aperitif at a cafe close by, and explained what he wanted while M. Pettit listened very sympathetically. "Can you do it?" Charlie concluded.

"As to that—certainly," replied M. Pettit. "You understand, it is my métier. But permit me to inquire why you should wish to go to all the trouble of installing a private shower bath?"

"Why?" said Charlie, slightly staggered. "Well—I just want one, you see."

"You say you have a tub, monsieur?"

"Yes, monsieur."

"Why not just use the tub then, monsieur?"

"I do use the tub but I want a shower, too," said Charlie, grilling his teeth slightly.

M. Pettit shook his head slowly.

"Very well then. I will come to your home, let us say—next Thursday—at eleven."

"Can't you make it any sooner than that?" asked Charlie.

"Impossible, monsieur. You understand I must prepare."

Prepare what, Charlie wondered. But all he said was, "How long will the job take?"

"Ah—that. It is impossible to say. A few days."

"Could you send more than one man?"

"Naturally," said M. Pettit. "We never send one man alone. It would not be very pleasant for him to work. After all, a man must have someone to talk to, isn't it so, monsieur?"

About ten days later, three workmen with rosy morning faces appeared at the studio. "We are the men of M. Pettit," declared one. "You are the monsieur who has commanded the shower bath?"

"Yes," said Charlie.

The workmen smiled and entered. They were in high good spirits. They looked around the studio and chattered and laughed gaily. Suddenly, without any warning, they fell to with tremendous energy and began to tear down part of the bathroom wall. Charlie rushed over to remove an expensive tapestry and then fled to a cafe. He got back a few minutes before eleven. A hole yawned in the wall. It looked like progress. At eleven sharp the men dropped their tools, lit cigarettes and started to leave.

"Where are you going?" asked Charlie.

"It is eleven o'clock," said the foreman. "We are going for wine."

As they passed out, the foreman turned back. "Pardon me, monsieur, the men would like to know why, since you have a tub, you also desire a shower."

"Tell the men," that I desire a shower because I desire a shower," replied Charlie frigidly.

"Yes, monsieur," said the foreman. He looked at Charlie a little anxiously. After that the workmen treated Charlie very carefully—like a potentially dangerous lunatic.

After that first morning, it seemed to Charlie that nothing happened for days. The three plumbers arrived every morning at eight-thirty, knocked off at eleven for wine, knocked off again for lunch (two hours), and stopped at six. They held long conversations, turned off the water for long periods, and looked at his English books curiously. Sometimes Charlie heard them arguing for hours about a detail of plumbing technique. On such occasions they dropped their tools and gave themselves up heart and soul to the discussion.

"Why, don't you see?" said the friend. "It's simple. They hurry to break your wall down so you can't change your mind about having the job done. Then they take their time."

After a week of this, when Charlie was becoming pretty desperate, he came in one afternoon and found two big pipes sticking up through the studio floor outside the bathroom.

"What's this?" he demanded.

"You desire, monsieur?" asked the foreman politely.

"I desire to know what these pipes are doing sticking up in the room this way?"

"These are the pipes for the shower bath," replied the foreman proudly.

"Yes, but they aren't going to remain in the room this way, are they?"

"But why not?" asked the foreman, rather amazed.

"Why not? It looks terrible. It spoils the whole room!"

The workmen looked at one another in surprise. One of them said weakly, incredulously, "You don't like the pipes, monsieur?"

"Like the pipes?" Charlie raged. "Sure I like the pipes. I love the pipes!"

"Thank you very very much, monsieur," said the foreman, relieved. He patted the pipes affectionately.

"But," continued Charlie, "I want them concealed in the wall. Understand?"

"Concealed in the wall!" The workmen were horrified. "But, but, monsieur, if they are concealed in the wall no one will know they are there. No one will see them!"

"That's right," said Charlie, "no one will ever see them if they are in the wall. That's right." He began to laugh a little wildly, and went out.

When the job was finished, two iron pipes graced his living-room wall.

One Sunday afternoon some time later the doorbell rang. Charlie opened the door and found the foreman of the plumbers with a man and woman dressed in their Sunday best. They were expectant expressions.

"Pardon this intrusion," said the plumber, "would monsieur permit me to show my friends the work we have done in your studio—the shower bath and the pipes?"

"Purchases of Motorists Last Year in Canada Amounted to $186,078,976"

Cashish motorists are big spenders and, indirectly, important employers of labor. They are in the upper bracket when it comes to circulating money for, in established areas of spending in 1934, official statistics prove they dug down into their bank accounts to the extent of $186,078,976 and this figure covers only known purchases.

For instance, they spent $75,872,796 on new cars, $47,604,760 on registration fees and gasoline taxation, $14,272,000 on vacations overseas and $32,645,000 on holidays in the United States. What they paid for the purchase of second hand cars is not known but they did contribute $13,684,420 to the financing of 51,731 used car purchases. Gross sales of gasoline were 534,782,018 gallons and, allowing an average of slightly less than 20 cents per gallon would add another $100,000,000 to the total purchases, excluding the cost of oil lubricants, anti-freeze, etc.

In four divisions of industry, last year, 27,836 men and women owed their ability to meet their regular household bills to buy clothes called the doctor in when Johnny had a 'tummy ache' and go to an occasional movie, to the pocket book of motorists for, in 1934, the automobile industry employed 9,674 persons and paid them $12,938,933 out of income from new car sales. Automobile accessory plants had a payroll of $3,569,483 to cover 3,776 employees, the oil industry a payroll of $6,141,945 for 4,628 men and women and the rubber industry, $8,910,124 to cover the wages and salary of 9758.

When it comes down to spending, the motorists occupied a front seat for their total expenditures last year of $172,998,369 were approximately $60,000,000 more than the value of the total mineral production of the Dominion for the previous year and their aggregate purchases equalled 35.1 per cent of the net national debt.

LIBRARY NOTES

"THE GREEN MURDER CASE"

By S. S. VanDine

"The Green Murder Case" is another thrilling murder mystery which is solved by Philo Vance.

The fiendish ingenuity of the murderer baffled the efforts of the police and detectives to such an extent that even more members of the family became victims before the solution of the crimes.

The exciting story and the help of a extraordinary genius in the solution of the crimes.

At the going down of the sun and in the morning we will remember them.

QUIET CEREMONY FOR KING'S SON'S WEDDING

LONDON.—The Duke of Gloucester, tall soldier son of His Majesty King George and Queen Mary, and Lady Alice Montague-Douglas-Scott were married on Wednesday last in a quiet ceremony in the crimson and gold chapel of Buckingham Palace.

Lady Alice, dressed in pearl shade satin, and the 35-year-old duke, resplendent in the gold-framed blue tunic scarlet breeches and black-topped boots of the Tenth Hussars, were pronounced man and wife by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Prince of Wales now is the royal family's only bachelor.

Make The Pennies Bigger

By Reading The Advt.

When John A. was Premier and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cravats and ladies wore hoop skirts, the pennies they tossed to children were as big as half dollars.

A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great-uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods and buy silks that would make you green with envy, linens that were linens and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increase the spending size of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and the distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

It might never have been solved if Philo Vance had not, almost by accident, become interested in the case, and began to study the various persons who appear in the story, to such good effect.

There are several who have equally good motive for wishing the other members of the family out of the way. Can you solve the mystery? Read the story from the local library.

A REMEMBRANCE FOR THE FALLEN

With proud Thanksgiving a mother for her children,

England mourns for her dead across the sea.

Flesh of her flesh they were, spirit of her spirit,

Fallen in the cause of the free.

Solemn the drums thrill; Death august and royal

Sings sorrow up into immortal spheres,

There is music in the midst of desolation

And a glory that shines upon our tears.

They went with songs to the battle, they were young,

They were staunch to the end against odds uncounted;

Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow

They fell with their face to the foe, they shall not grow old;

Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.

At the going down of the sun and in the morning

We will remember them.

They mingle not with their laughing comrades again;

They sit no more at familiar tables of home;

They have no lot in our labour of the day-time;

They sleep beyond England's foam.

But where our desires are and our hopes profound,

Felt as a wellspring that is hidden from sight,

To the innermost heart of their own land they are known

As the stars are known to the night;

As the stars that shall be bright when we are dust

Moving in marches upon the heavenly plain;

As the stars that are starry in the time of our darkness,

To the end, to the end, they remain—

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

Mr. Isaac Anderson, who for a number of years has farmed in the Old Edge district, has completed his arrangements to spend at least a year at his old home in Scotland.

We understand that Mr. Joe Whittle has purchased the house formerly owned by Mr. E. Towse on First avenue.

Mrs. Wm. Morrow, who resides in the National park, was the holder of one of the lucky tickets on a tomahawk drawing held in Regina last Thursday; her chance taking the fifth prize valued at $50.00. This was won through a "door prize" at the Catholic card party held the same night.

One of the little Gaulin children, in invalid state birth, was treated at the hospital last week for sickness from the effects of the dense smoke in the fire which occurred at her home.

Mr. Earl Lane, who is a student in pharmacy at the university of Alberta, spent the week-end holiday with his parents in town.

Miss Edith Wilson of Edmonton, was a guest of Mrs. Roy Carl last week-end.

Mr. John Barr, formerly of the bank staff at this point, was down from the city to spend the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Wittmann.

We are informed that the C.W.L. ladies are holding their annual bazaar on Saturday, November 30th. This will prove a good chance to procure handsome Christmas gifts from the many articles of fancy work which have been donated from the East.

Mr. Kirk Snyder was down from the city on Sunday to holiday with his parents.

Mr. T. Withnell was away to Heath on Monday busy shipping a bunch of his cattle to the Eastern markets.

Quite a good crowd attended the Goulet sale on Saturday last when prices ruled fair. We understand that "Bill" is filling a big car with machinery and effects which he will take with him to the coast this week-end.

We are glad to note that Mr. Dave Davison is now feeling much better after his accident of last week. He left the hospital at the week-end.

At St. Andrew's (Pres.) church on Sunday morning last, the pastor, Rev. W. Brooker, preached a special sermon in keeping with the Armistice and Remembrance Day.

From reports to hand it is shown that the total snowfall to date amounts to over thirty inches. In places the drifts are several feet deep, and the weather bureau says "more to come."

Rev. "Billy" Sunday, the baseball evangelist, died on Wednesday in New York City at the age of 72 years, after a sickness lasting three years.

Having been away for the past month visiting relatives in the States, Mrs. Jack Lewis has now returned home.

Mrs. A. McQuaker and her daughter were trippers to the city last week-end.

$ GREENSHIELDS $

Mr. and Mrs. E. Patterson motored to Edmonton on Thursday, returning home Saturday.

Miss Janet Carl returned to her duties at Edmonton last Wednesday.

Miss Hettie Kennedy spent the week-end with her parents in Edmonton.

Mr. R. Halterman of North Battleford is visiting relatives and friends in the district.

Miss Mildred and Bernice Reid visited Miss L. Morrison Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Plater visited Mrs. and Mrs. E. Jackson on Sunday.

A general meeting of all those interested in re-organizing the Wainwright senior hockey team, will be held in Tory's Service Station, Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. Whether a Wainwright team will be entered in the Gas Line Hockey League or not will be decided upon, therefore those interested are requested to turn out and express their views.

Tomorrow (Thursday) evening at the theatre will see the consummation of the romance "The Gypsy Rover." Get your reserved seats at the standard pharmacy.

Mrs. F. Church and Mrs. W. Mackay, jr., pleasantly sang a sacred duet at St. Thomas' church at the Sunday evening (Remembrance Day) service, for which the church was prettily and appropriately decorated.

The November issue of the C.N.R. Magazine shows a splendid picture of the C.N. depot gardens here, with a worth-while to Bill Tansey for such results from his arduous labors as "official gardener."

Mr. J. Lambeth was visiting friends and relatives in the city for the holiday period.

Some get floods; some get earthquakes; some get cyclones; but we get blizzards that put traffic and business more or less at a standstill. Drifts have made the roads hard to travel, some of the side roads being impassable. However when the wind drops and the sun shines again we'll all feel better; and it will mean a lot of moisture, needed for the land. It is sure hard on the stock, though.

No matter whatever may seem to be the matter with your Radio it can be put in A1 shape by Chas. Wear at the Wainwright Pharmacy. We have installed a complete set of new testing instruments, and carry a full supply of parts, and this will ensure your machine being returned to you just like new. Phone 46 and get full value from the many radio programs on the air.

$ COMING EVENTS $

The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's (Pres.) church are holding their annual bazaar and sale of work in the I.O.O.F. hall, on Saturday, November 30th, from 2:30 till 6 p.m. A whole raft of useful and fancy articles will be on display, and a feature of the sale is that nothing will be priced over $1.00. Afternoon tea will be served, too, and everyone is invited.

The Semi-annual Bazaar and Jumbo Sale arranged by the W.A. of St. Thomas' (Ang.) church is to be held in the I.O.O.F. hall on Saturday, November 23rd, from 2 to 6 p.m. Afternoon tea will be served and all are invited.

Blessed Sacrament parish annual bazaar will be held in the Separate school auditorium on Saturday afternoon and evening, November 30th. Extensive arrangements are being made to ensure that this will be an outstanding event. Booths galore. Afternoon tea. Dance in the evening. Keep the date open as everyone is heartily invited.

A wonderful programme was given over CBC air-lines on Monday last, to commemorate Remembrance Day, under the auspices of the Canadian Legion.

OYEN NEWS HAS #### CLOSED DOORS

After 21 years of uninterrupted operation the Oyen News ceases publication. It was established in February, 1914, by Alex. G. Holmes and Charles L. Dunford. The latter assumed control of the plant a few years ago when Mr. Holmes moved from Alaska, Saskatchewan, to Vancouver, where he now publishes a suburban weekly. Mr. Dunford has chosen Sylvan Lake as a new location. A weekly will be published at an early date.

CONTINUATION OF TOWN COUNCIL

their grant of $25.00. On motion by Councillor Welch, it was unanimously resolved that this Council prefers the sharing of relief in the proportion in force in 1934 rather than that proposed in the circular of October 16th, 1935.

Mr. W. S. Goulet appeared before Council with a proposal to dispose of a small engine to the town, on motion by Coun. Welch it was unanimously resolved that Mr. Goulet be advised that, provided he had not disposed of this engine by next Spring, Council will then consider his proposition.

An application was received from Mr. W. H. McNern for indigent relief on the ground that such relief has been refused by the Municipal District of Gilt Edge on the ground of non-liability and, on motion by Coun. Link, the matter was referred to the Town Solicitor for his attention and necessary action.

On motion, Council was regularly adjourned.
